Letter from John Donne, Amiens, to Sir Robert More, 1612 February 7: autograph manuscript signed, Papers of the More family of Loseley Park, Surrey. Transcription by Early Modern Manuscripts Online (EMMO). MS L.b.535, Folger Shakespeare Library, Washington, DC.

leaf 1 recto

Sir

Thys ys my second letter to yow; that ys, my second fault. For letters from thys barren place, are well inough accepted, if they bee pardoned: we hear from paris (but I thinke scarse so soone as yow do) that the extreame great Confluence of all the princes and great persons thether, with so great traine, as haue not beene in use before, breed generall ialousyes and suspitions, though yt appear not yet where the sore wyll break. But one resultance owt of all ys easily discouered, that the Religion vs like to suffer in france. For the Duke of Bouillon ys so united to the great ones, especially to the Regent, and her purposes, as he neglects that party, which vsed to receive favor and hart from hys good disposition towards them. The Duke of Sully desperate of returne to any greatnes, and for hys sonne the Marquis of Rosny, he ys yet under the affliction of an importunity and solicitation to resigne hys great office, of great Master of the Artillery: and very like to loose yt. and hys grandfather, l'esdiguieres, (by a mariage) receiues but vll satisfaction, beeinge come braue and stronge to paris to give countenance to the yonge Marguis hys pursuite of hys right, for retaininge that office. So that I can not perceive but that they are very willinge, that those of the Religion should be discontent: that so yt might eyther appear how much they are able to do, and where theyr strength consists; or that some act of discontent from them, might occasion and justify seuere proceedings against them. for in the last Assembly, which was afforded them, when they presented onely petitions for the ratifyenge and due executinge of things granted vnto them by former Edicts, they found the passages so dull, and dilatory, as theyr tyme expir'd before they had any particular awn= swere; and now when they send deputyes to the Court, to solicite a new Assembly, they finde the same difficultyes. And that which affects them mo as much, as any of these affronts donne to the sword= leaf 1 verso

men, ys, a danger of Servin, the Kings Attorney. He ys a Catholique, but a french Catholique. And, Sir, french-papistry, ys but like french veluet: a prety slack Religion that would soone wear owt; and not of the three-piled papistry of Italy and Spayne. As he doth, in all such occasions, so in thys last Arrest which concernd the Iesuits, he used much vehemency against them. And though upon the Iesuite Cotton hys importunity, Servin and the Iudge, (that ys the president) beeinge contracted by the Queen Regent, gaue so good a justification of all that they had donne in that pleadinge, and that Arrest, against the Iesuits, that shee then seemed then to desist from hear movinge any modification of the arrest, yet a Cardinall hath since that tyme told Servin, that hys best way ys, to dispatche himselfe of that place. which he vnderstands for a liberty to sell ytt, or a warninge that otherway ese he may loose all. So that, sir, as I sayd at first, all that directly or obliquely might succor the Religion, suffer great diminutions. The Edict against Duells hath been lately infringed much. And wyll be oftner, if the Queen be not severe in the observinge of it; by reason of the very many, and very different sortes of people at thys tyme, at paris. Two or three haue been committed for the breach of yt, and remaine so; but as yet I haue heard of no seuerer prosecution. I beseech yow present my humble thanks and services, where yow know they are due. I should not have forborne to have written to sir Thomas Grymes, if thys place gaue any thinge which he desird to know. To hym and to hys lady, I ame bound to do better offices, then words and letters are, if my fortune could expresse yt. When there ys any way open to yow, to send into the wight, I pray give thys letter a pas= sage. If one could not gett to that Ile, but by the northwest discouery, I  $^{\text{could not}}$  thinke the returns so difficult and dilatory. for yet I have had no returne from thence of any letter, since my comminge out of England, and they thus silence, especially at thus tyme, when I make account that your sister vs near her paynfull and dange= rous passadge, doth somewhat more affect mee, then I had thought any thinge of thys world could have donne. Good sir, if perchance any letter come to yow from thence, do me the fauer to send yt to Master Iohn Bruer, at the Queen armes, a Mercer in chepside,  $[\lozenge]$   $[\lozenge]$  any thinge wyll safely be brought to your Affectionate frinde & servant

Amyens.7.Febru*arii* here. i6ii. I*ohn* Donne