As duty Constrayneth me I am to let yow vnderstand as neare as I Can when my Lord meayneth to take his iorny towards Cambridge: the which at this present he is determyned to take the fourthe of this monethe. The Cause of his tarryinge so longe at the Courte was to see the comminge of one Cassamyere a ffreanche Imbassador, whome (the Queenes grace) dothe greatly esteeme,/ ffor this first of ffebruary there was suche a shewe of noble men & gentlemen in the Tylt yarde at whitte Hall, as the Lyke (by euery mans report) hathe not been seene this fforty yeares. ffurther to troble yow herein I thinke it is needlesse for the bearer hearof mr Hocleton can Certyfye you./ And thus in hast I Committ yow to god whoe euer defend yow & all yours./ ffrom London the second of ffeburary 1578.
